On October 30 2014, LA CHAMBRE BLANCHE invites the public to attend the official launching of the new premises of research, creation and art prototype development laboratory. It will be a unique window of opportunity to meet with the project's proponents and to participate to the art and technology community.

We have been rearranging the venue to allow an efficient appropriation of the means of production by the artists and other stakeholder in art and technology. Artists, makers and other creative souls will have the opportunity to produce 3D models, to develop prototypes, to divert certain electronic devices from their primary purpose and to get acquainted with the most recent production means. State of the art equipment as well as dedicated resources will be available to users in this new venue. We thus aim to allow some kind of self-management as well as a technical and artistic support for the community.

To realise this project we received the support of many artists' centers, cultural institutions as well as many art and technology enterprises. We will be happy to welcome you and many of those enterprises in our new space on October 30 at 7:30 pm.
