Un bon coup de data (ou beaucoup de data) is a daring proposition gathering a « great everything » of contents taken from the network and produced by the artist. Wishing to arise the browser's interest for discovery, this overbid of informations will decline in fifteen modules displaying archives, registers, data banks and web pages labyrinths. The nature of the transmitted informations will not appear for its useful function, but as a singular universe built by the artist. Around the fun complexity of this dense information weaving generated by this project, the incongruous is bound to the poetic in an admitted purpose: make this data crossing a visit of surprises and pleasure.

Free actor of visual arts, performance and poetry, Hugo Nadeau presented performances in the United States, as well as several exhibitions and performances in Quebec City. His artistic approach imitates the way our institutions and societies form themselves. He develops graphic systems aiming to invasion and works on commenting the place where he is.
